Inspired by the hit movie "Hidden Figures," it is the story of three African American women who used their mathematical genius to help NASA send man to the moon. BUF of Michigan created "Hidden Heroes" to showcase four individuals who have made an impact in business, entrepreneurialism, education, music and a trailblazer in their respective fields that may have gone a little unnoticed to many.

The recipients this year included:
1. Donald S. Vest (posthumously) for business
2. Tonee Bell for entrepreneur,
3. Mahogany Jones for music
4. Captain Stephanie Johnson for trail blazing

BUF used its 47th Anniversary Gala on September 22 as a platform to introduce the four "Hidden Heroes" at the Detroit Marriott Renaissance Center.

Stephanie Johnson was recognized (pictured here) for being the first African American female pilot for Delta Airlines.

About BUF of Michigan:
BUF is an alternative funding resource that supports non-profit organizations that have little capacity to approach traditional funding sources but provide unique solutions to long-term problems. Additionally, through partnerships with other community organizations, BUF is able to enhance and expand services and programs to those in the community most in need.

BUF of Michigan is committed to impact positive changes in a diverse community by providing funding and support to non-profit community-based programs and organizations that focus on education, community development, cultural enrichment and economic improvement. http://www.bufmi.org
BUF Celebrates Hidden Heroes

Captain Stephanie Johnson, Delta Airlines’ 1st African American Female Pilot and her father